Envelope labelled 'Abbey items suitable for exhibitions' containing a letter about the 'pyx in the Abbey Office', which gives some information about its history, 1976. It was taken from a church in France during the Revolution, exhibited at 'Dr Nott's private museum in Gay St, Bath'. He left it to Mrs Willoughby who gave it to her daughter Mrs George Boileau Willock, who bequeathed it to the Abbey. (Dr Nott was tutor to Princess Sophia). Plan of the Abbey by FW Beresford Smith showing the location of a coffin discovered in Bath Abbey aisle, 1962. Small piece of cloth mounted on a cardboard mount, with an inscription on the back of the mount identifying it as a fragment of cloth found round the skeleton of Robert, Prior of Bath and Abbot of Glastonbury, who was buried in Bath Abbey in 1234. Discovered during an archaeological dig in 1869. Presented to Bath Abbey by Miss M. Audry Start. Replica of a Saxon lead cross, known as the Eadgyvu Cross, electrotype. The original, which was found during excavations in 1898, is exhibited in the Roman Baths Museum. Notes about the discovery of coffin handle plates during excavations in the 1960s, and about the Eadgyvu Cross, nd [1960s]. BA/4/CEM	The Abbey Cemetery The Bath Abbey Cemetery was created from three pieces of land in Widcombe. A freehold plot, comprising approx 2/3rds of the cemetery, of land formerly called Hanging Land Tynning or Lane End. This was sold by Bishop Peter Baines and conveyed by Deed Poll dated 8 Apr 1843 to Her Majesty's Commissioners for Building New Churches. A leasehold plot, previously a garden, forming the part of the cemetery running into a point by the entrance gates. A strip of land, part freehold & part leasehold, running along the length of the cemetery wall bordering the road from Prior Park. The leasehold strip is the piece nearest the entrance gate. Deeds and other records relating to the legal history and management of the Abbey cemetery. Typescript report, signed 'FW Beresford Smith'. 3 pp. Introduction to the report, commenting that 1949 is 'a year during which the first results of much strenuous effort 'behind the scenes' would begin to be really evident...the restoration of the Clerestories, Nave South Aisle Roof, Tower Timbers, South Transept Roof and the Organ with new Blowing Chamber and apparatus have all been accomplished...the Tower Stairs have been electrically lit and the Brice Mundy Memorial Window fixed and dedicated. The Automatic Winding apparatus for the Clock has been installed and the Carillon restored by the City Council. The Bookcases at the West End have been made and fixed. Satisfactory agreement has been reached with the War Damage Commission for payments in connection with the Stained glass.' [The Bookcases were made by students from Bath Technical College]. The report then gives more detail about the works. It ends with his appreciation of 'the spirit of craftsmanship evinced by the men working on the Abbey...[I] believe that 'nothing but the best' has been in the minds of the craftsmen'; and thanks John Hatton, Chairman of the Fabric Committee, for his help. 1 document	Dec 1949
